HATS AND CAPS.

The custom of covering the head is one as ancient as it is universal. The necessity of some protection from the effects of the sun, and from rain and cold, has resulted in the use of the turban among Asiatic nations, the woolen bonnet of the Highlanders, and the various styles of hats and caps now worn for useful and fashionable purposes. Hats have also been worn as political badges, and in the present age we find felt and other hats taking names from popular political and other parties. The present shape of hats-or of Cromwell; but Charles II prohibited the wearng of round hats by the lower classes; and as said that $5,000 was won and lost on the decision. the importation of beaver fur had also been prohibited, the felt hat came into use. In after years the shape of the hat changed somewhat, and the hree-cocked hats were worn. In 1750, these were laid aside, and the round hat again came into use, and have since remained the fashion, and unrestricted to all classes. The present day Quaker hat is the same as it was in the time of the De-

The jobbing trade of Louisville is furnished chiefly the coarser fel; and staw hats, fur, leather and woolen caps, and a few silk hats of medium quality. Here there is no extensive manufacturng establishment to enter into competition with them. Our manufacturers are restricted to supplying the retail trade, and make only the fine silk, cassimere and beaver-fur hats. These are made of different value, of various finish, and sold at prices ranging from $3 to $5. The finer of these hats has no superior in any market, if we except the Paris hat. The French make a better silk material for covering hats than is made in any other country. This they use in making hats, and also in exporting to other countries, where it is put upon beaver bodies. The hat which is here termed Parisian is made in this ountry, and covered with the French silk, which is distinguished by its short nap and smooth, glossy appearance. Silk hats entirely of domestic manufacture are now covered with a plush made wholly of silk. Among the several manufacturers in this city, have built up an envisble reputation as business men of principle and energy. They make and sell only the most superior of hats and caps, and sustomers may depend upon it that they sell at the ewest figure at which such goods can be obained. Their cases are always supplied with the best of a great variety of silk, cassimere, beaver, plush, felt, fur, straw and other hats and

THE BATTLE OF LAKE ERIE .- To-day is the anniversary of the battle of Lake Erie. This battle was fought on Lake Erie, Sept. 13th, 1813. The force engaged consisted of two large brigs, the Lawrence and the Niagara, each of twenty guns, and seven smaller vessels, making in all a force of fifty-four guns, and about six hundred men. The British fleet amounted to six vessels, with sixty-three guns and about eight hundred men. The American fleet was under the command of Oliver Hazard Perry, and his intrepidity, gallantry, and bravery on this occasion, has ranked his name high in the annals of our country's history. During the conflict the six British ships, one after another, were compelled to haul down their flags, and the glorious victory was announced in the brief, yet immortal language of the gallant Perry-"We have met the

The Mechanics' Fair.

Many persons visit the Institute in the day and pass an hour profitably in observing the articles on exhibition. But at night, when the crowd is large, the band discoursing music, and the machinery is set in motion, the scene is one of strange nominated for re-election in the Third District in and noisy interest, more suggestive, perhaps, of art, science and industry, than the concord of sweet sounds. All who visit the Institute will be repaid either in pleasure or profitable observation, as they please. An object of special interest is SUPERIOR COOKING RANGE.

Among the many useful articles on exhibition at the Fair we wish to invite the especial attention of strangers, hotel keepers, and house keepers to the cooking range of Wallace & Lithgow, of the famous Eagle Foundry. Already has one of our leading hotels had a kitchen built expressly for the introduction of this wonderful labor Those "Gyroscope Tops," for sale by A. saving, fuel saving invention, which, by unanimous consent, has been pronounced the best and most economical kitchen range in the Union. A full description of the range can hardly be given, as it must be both seen and used to be fully appre-

by the genius and skill of Wallace & Lithgow, who have secured in its construction all the combinations of usefulness, cheapness of fuel, cleaniness, and wonderful expedition in cooking any and all the varied dishes required for the most extensive hotel or restaurant. It is sixteen feet in extended racks above the ovens to hold dishes of meats to keep them piping hot, and the gravy warm. In addition to the ovens it has a broiling apparatus attached, where meats and game can be "done to a turn" in almost a twinkling of an eve. Then again fronting the furnaces is a magnificent "roasting kitchen" with a fire front of fully seven feet in length, before which could be roasted a whole ox, or half dozen fat muttons, shop of Hawley & Billings, on Eighth street, yes-terday. On coming out of the depot he met the young man, who had been him that he had more important business to transact, read the writ to him, and kept him in custody until the departure of the 9% o'clock train, when he started with him to Petersburg.

From what we can learn he is one of an organ. ized gang of thieves and murderes who have their headquarters at or near Petersburg, and he, with his comrades in crime, was detected in some mean act, and cleared himself by turning State's evi-dence, and was compelled to leave there for fear of losing his life at the hands of the friends of those who were sent to the penitentiary.

A man named Carroll, one of the men in the penitentiary, who was sent there on his (Edward's) testimony, wrote to the authorities of Pike county stating that Edwards was the person who set fire to a house last March two years ago, belonging to a Mr. Martin, in which his child was burnt to death. Other facts, which have come to light since, go to corroborate what Carroll had ritten. The Sheriff thinks the case a plain one. written. The Sheriff thinks the case a plain one. Edwards some time ago, with his father, sister-in-law, and the latter's sister, were charged with receiving atolen goods in Petersburg, when he turned State's evidence against them, and they were sent to the penitentiary for a term of years.—Since he has been here, he has been going under the assumed name of Henry Grant.—New Albany Ledger, 9th.

Clarksville, (Tenn.) Chronicle gives the following version of the difficulty in Hopkinsville, Ky., between Captain James Jackson and W. W. West "On Thursday last, a fatal affray occurred at Hopkinsville, in which W. W. Western and Capt. James Jackson were the parties, and in which Western was instantly killed. The particulars, as they have been repeated to us are, that Western and Jackson had been at enmity for a year or more, and on one occasion had a fight. On the day of the killing, they met in Hopkinsville and passed each other on the street. After they had passed, Jackson stopped and asked Western if he had spoken to him and if he meant to insult him Western replied that he had not spoken to him but he might think as he pleased about it, o something to that effect. Jackson then struck him, whereupon Western attempted to draw his pistol, which caught in his pocket, and Jackson shot him in the breast before he could get it out. Western then snapped his pistol twice, but it failed to go off. He then closed with Jackson, but they were parted, and Western died almost im-We understand that the occurrence created great excitement in Hopkinsville, and that public sentiment is much divided as to the an extract from Count Gonfallconier's account of Fifteen years I existed in a dungeon ten feet square! During six years I had a companion; during nine I was alone! I never could distinguish the face of him who shared my captivity, in the eternal twilight of our cell. The first year we talked incessantly together; we related our past lives, our joys forever gone, over and over again. The next year we communicated to each other our thoughts and ideas on all subjects. The third year we had no ideas to communicate; we were beginning to lose the power of reflection. The fourth, at the interval of a month or so, we would open our lips to ask each other if it were possible that the world went as gay and bustling as when we formed a portion of mankind. The fifth we were silent. The sixth he was taken away—I never knew where—to execution or liberty. But I was glad when he was gone; even solitude was better than the pale, vacant face. One day (it must have been a year or two after my companion left me) the dungeon door was opened; whence proceeding I know not, the following words were uttered:—'By order of his Imperial Majesty, I intimate to you that your wife died a year ago.' Then the door was shut, and I heard no more; they had but flung this great agony upon me, and left me alone with it.

The $100,000 Breach of Promise Case.

The breach of promise case, at St. Louis, which Miss Effie Carstang got the extraordinary verdict of $100,000 against Henry Shaw, a millionaire, is familiar to our readers. A new lionaire, is familiar to our readers. A new trial, it will be remembered, was granted, and the Judge of the Court appointed "roving com-G Sherr, Vincentown, O: H Gates, New Alb. taking of these depositions, was to impeach the character of the plaintiff and her sister Mary for chastiy and virtue during their residence in Brooklyn, and to show the unfavorable opinions Brooklyn, and to show the unfavorable opinions which were entertained of and concerning them by persons with whom they associated in their earlier years. This was only to a limited extent successful, no direct acts of culpability being shown against either of them, except by one of the witnesses, whose reputation for truth and veracity and general bad standing in the community was assailed by others. The latter, in their turn, were contradicted by gentlemen who stand high above reproach in public estimation, and it was this reputating testimony which rendered expedient to butting testimony which rendered expedient to both litigants the attendance of so many witnesses, but at the attendance of so many witnesses, but a both litigants the attendance of so many witnesses, the occupancy of so much time, and the expendi-ture of so many hundreds of dollars on both sides. It is a remarkable fact, so far as the plaintiff is oncerned, that: although she was born and rought up in Brooklyn, and has many of her elatives and old school-fellows and companions relatives and old school-fellows and companions here residing, not a single female was produced by her to testify in her favor, notwithstanding that she was present at each meeting before the Commissioners, duing a protracted investigation of more than three weeks, and was attended by agents and emissaries ready to do her bidding at any moment, so far as relates to the service of supporting the running of grands, and the delige. subpoens, the running of errands, and the deliv-ery of notes and messages. She was unquestion-ably a woman of more than ordinary shrewdness, tact and energy, and throughout the pro-ceedings took copious notes of the testimony, be-sides giving instructions to her attorneys, and compting them in their direct and cross interroconas were issued on the part of the defense, urposely evaded examination, either by conceal-og themselves from the service of process, or enely leaving the State until the termination of the inquiry before Mr. Eager. One of them abandoned a lucrative situation which he held as engineer in a large establishment in New York, rather than make his appearance before the com-missioners; another suddenly discovered that he had important business to transact in Philadelphia, whence he suddenly made tracks for Cork; and three others (ladies well known in Brooklyn) found it expedient to repair their shattered health by beating a hasty retreat to the Sulphur Springs of Virginia, the mineral waters of Saratoga, or the invigorating breezes of Nowport or Cape May. It is not impossible that these untoward circumstances will induce the defendant's legal advisers to issue another commission to New York, at a salubrious season of the year, when traveling to fashionable places of summer resort will neither be so sequences. be so seductive or so serviceable as at present, and business men will be less able than of late to cast aside their customary vocations for jaunts of uxury and pleasure. The Commissioners sent to New York in this case are not the only preparations made for the defense on the oacasion of the ensuing trial at St. Louis. Others have bean issued for the examina-tion of witnesses at Charleston, S. C., New Oreans, Cincinnati, and elsewhere, so that the case promises to be one of the most interesting and im-portant of its kind ever presented to any court or jury either in this or any other civilized country.

The memory of one who has passed away from earth should be kept alive precisely in proportion as his place in life was filled illy or well. Judged by this rule, few memories deserve better to be cherished than that of the late Mr. Cragg. Horn in England, he was brought to America by his father when quite young, and placed with a manufacturer of piano fortes, to learn the busi-ness. On attaining his majority he removed to Louisville, where he resided up to the time of his death. About ten years ago he associated himself with Messrs. Peters & Webb, music publishers, and laid the foundations of the large manufacturing establishment carried on under the style of

But respect is specially due to the memory of Mr. Cragg on account of his excellent qualities as a man. Exceedingly retiring in his disposi-tion, he was little known outside of the circle of his own family relations, a few personal friends, and those in his immediate employment. By these he was loved and respected as only he can be who possesses, in a high degree, those moral, social THE EMPRESS AT THE FERES.—Paris writers speak in ecstatic terms of the appearance of the Empress Eugenie, at the memorable fetes of the fourteenth and fifteenth of August. "The Coming Man."—In the imagination of every young lady, the coming man is a handsome young officer with pearly teeth, coral lips, rosy cheeks, curly hair, blue eyes, and black mostache, who is dying desperately in love with her, and is coming some day on a prancing gray horse with a long flowing tail, to propose to her. Money is no object, for the thought of money does not vulgarly intrude itself into the young lady's imagination in connection with her Coming Man, only he must be beautifully dressed, and have a handsome riding-whip, and lingling spurs, and neatly-rolled whiskers, as tight as watch-springs. Alas! how many thousands are still waiting impatiently, and yet confidently for the advent of this Coming Man. Punch.

LOUISVILLE: SATURDAY, ... SEPTEMBER 10, 1859.

Reading Matter on Every Page. It is said that Judge Douglas will visit this city during his present electioneering tour. We think not. There is no occasion for his coming here, and he can certainly gain nothing by pro claiming his semi-abolition heresies in this State But should be come there are men who would join in ovations to him, and would hail him with as much enthusiasm as if he had never coalesced with the Black Republicans in the United States Senate, and as if his anti-Lecompton friends in the North had never openly warred against the National Democracy and in favor of the Aboli-tionists. What has Judge Douglas done that he should be received with ovations in the South, and that peans should be sung in his honer. What act of pecuculiar devotion to the South has he manifested within the last two years, and what do his boasted services in the past amount to with the modern interpretation which he gives to his pet measures. His favorite Kansas-Nebraska Act, as he explains it, is a farce and a chest; and the repeal of th Missouri Compromise an act of unnecessary legis-

By the Nebraska-Kansas act, he succeeded in rousing to its highest pitch the sectionalism of the North, without securing for the South the practical recognition of its rights. He fanned the fisme of anti-slavery excitement, and on it he has lived and breathed and had his being .-But, when this anti-slavery fanaticism became too strong and unmanageable, when he could not control the tempest he had raised, when his posisition in the Senate was imperilled, for the gratification of mere personal spite, and, as it was alleged, to save himself in Illinois, he abandoned the party which had made him all he ever was, and openly joined the Black Republicans; was their recognized leader in the Thirty-fourth Congress, caucussed with them, spoke for them and roted with them-and was practically as good a Black Republican as any of them. But his anti-Lecomptonism was almost forgotten and passed over, when, driven to the wall by Lincoln, he, to save his place in the Senate, pandered agein to Northern fanaticism, and enunciated his heresy of "unfriendly legislation," by which it was designed to cheat the South of all it had gained by the Nebraska-Kansas act and the subsequent decis ion in the Dred Scott case.

But, Judge Douglas in his recent essay has gone further than any of his apologists ever imagined he would go. They said he went against the admission of Kansas as a slave State to save himself in Illinois, and he made his Freeport speech for a similar purpose. But not so his recent essay-that was written unnecessarily, and is more obnoxious to the South than either his anti-Lecompton or his Freeport speech. He is going off further and further from the Democracy, and going on at the rate he is now progressing, he will soon find himself completely out of the Dem-

How far Judge Douglas will go, we cannot pre tend to predict, at this time. We know, however, how far his friends have gone in the Northern States, and we do not see why he may not do as his friends have done. Wherever this anti-Lecompton element in the Democratic party has been in the ascendency, there they have used it against the national Democracy and in favor of the Black Republicans. In Pennsylvania, the Douglas men under Forney openly coalesced with the Black Republicans, and in Indians, last year, the anti-Lecompton men ran independent candidates against the regular Democratic nominees, and thereby defeated some of the best and truest Democrats in the North, and all because they had dared to stand by the constitutional rights of the South. Judge Hughes, of Indiana, was defeated by the running of one of these Douglas Deme ocrats, and so were other good, true, and abl Democrats. And what was the consequence? The anti-Lecompton men, by their traitorism at th North, have lost us the National House of Repre sentatives, and have given it over to the Black Republicans; and now, having done all the mis chief they can, they wish to dictate terms to the National Democracy, and demand that their leader, Stephen A. Dougles, shall be rewarded for his labors to divide and break up the Democracy, by receiving the Charleston nomination for the Presidency.

These men, reeking with their recent abolition associations, and having done incalculable mis chief to our party, now desire to control and manage it, and threaten if we do not nominate their choice, they will endeavor to do it. We believe them. Their past acts show their sincerity. They have already done so when they have had the opportunity. But we will tell the squatter sovereign Demo crats of the North that the Southern Democracy don't care the "toss of a copper" between their loctrines and Sewardism, and that even the lapored Magazine efforts of Douglas and his stump speeches can not save him with the true Democracy of the nation. The Democracy never forgive one who falls from his high estate. A Democrat who once falls, falls irretrievably and forever. Judge Douglas will not prove an exception. He may succeed as did Van Buren in 1848, in defeating the regular Democratic candidate for the Presilency; but after that he will be powerless for evil. His career as a politician is over, and he cannot be galvanized into political life by all his efforts in Abolition Magazines or on the stump. Let Judge Douglas come to Kentucky, and let those who endorse his anti-Lecemptonism, his Freeport speech, and his squatter sovereignty, receive him with open arms; we certainly shall not do so-our fidelity to the South, the Constitution and the Democracy alike forbid it.

County Fairs .- We are in the midst of the season of the year devoted to the exhibition of our Agricultural fairs. Several fairs have already been held, and others are in progress, and all, so far as we have learned, have been largely at tended and liberally patronized. Fairs, in this State, are of recent origin, the larger number of them having been started within the last three or four years; but the success which has attended them has certainly been very encouraging-and we may now rank them among our permanent

It is right and proper our people should have occasions on which they may meet together in social intercourse, and spend a few days of festivity. Our fairs are not only devoted to the exhioition of fine stock and the richproducts of our soil, but are already looked forward to as occasions of great social enjoyment. We hope the county fairs may all be liberally patronized; and, in order that they may be so, the citizens of each county should patronize their local fairs. The Bourbon fair is now in successful progress, the Lexington fair commences next week, and the Southwestern fair commences, near this place, on the 20th. We have no doubt they will all be successful, and that the people will turn out by thousands to attend them.

The Vevay (Ind.) News gives the follow ing first rate notice of a most excellent and deserving Democrat who is a candidate for Doorkeeper of the next Kentucky House of Represen-

J. P. Orr, Jr., of New Liberty, Ky., is a candidate for the position of Doorkeeper of the next Kentucky Legislature, in December next. We have had a personal ac-quaintance of several years with Mr. Orr, and quaintance of several years with Mr. Orr, and when we say that he is as perfect a gentleman as we ever met with, we speak but the just opinion of all acquainted with him. Besides this, Mr. Orr is possessed of those qualities so necessary in a man occupying such a position. He is kind, affable, agreeable and attentive, strict in his business habits, punctual in his engagements, and firm and just in his decisions. Such a man as Mr. Orr at the door of all General Assemblies is needed. And when we consider that Mr. Orr is from the "star" Democratic county in Kentucky, it is but another reason why he should be honored with the position, and we hope the Legislature with the position, and we hope the Legislature will honor him, as they will themselves, by elect-ing him as their Doorkeeper.

[For the Louisville Courier] A REVERIE.

There's a silence sweet and dream-like On the mountain, hill and dale, And a breath of fragrant incense Comes trembling on the gale. The solemn hush of midnight hour Is stealing o'er me now; While Luna, pale with queenly smiles, Gilds flower, bush and bough.

Creation slumbers sweetly now 'Neath God's Omniscient eye, That like an unseen spirit sweeps Along the silent aky. 'Tis everywhere: nor can we hide From that Eternal Eye; 'Tis on the infant's sinless brow, And on us when we die.

I'm walking by the river's side, That murmurs through the vale. And its wavelets seem to whisper A sweet and fairy tale; O! murmur on, calm, gentle stream, Sad emblem of my life, Tny waters now soft , reposing, May waken soon to strife.

I will seek you sylvan bower, And lay me down and sleep, While holy angels 'round my brow Their vigils softly keep. My spirit is quietly pluming Its winglets for a flight, To meet its mate in dream-land halls, This balmy summer's night.

'Fis there alone I'll meet thee, love-I dare not meet thee herc-And since I weep, 0 ! chide me not, But give me tear for tear; And when we meet in dream-land bow'r, I'll kiss thy angel brow. And to thee whisper tales of love, As pure and chaste as thou.

Th's world is cold and cruel, love: Its charms are lost to me; I am a lonely exile here, From hope and love and thee I wander on, O! whither-where? My pathway lies in gloom, Each heart-throb brings me near-and near The cold and silent tomb!

NOTIOES.

A WORD TO THE WISE .- The people are awars that D. O'Hare, No. 427 Main street, is the oldest, largest, and most experienced manufacturer of trunks and similar articles in the city. They should avail themselves of the rare opportunities afforded by Mr. O'Hare. To the country and city merchants he offers peculiar advantages in his wholesale department, while in the retail line he cannot be equalled. Whoever wants to travel, whether with a small carpet bag or a mammoth trunk, need go no further than the great Western factory of Mr. O'Hare. His manufactory is a credit to Louisville, and should meet with extensive patronage. As a matter of home pride, and to subserve economy, purchasers will consult their best interest in purchasing of Mr. D. O'Hare. Remember, that the United States Prize Medal was awarded to D. O'Hare for the best trunks

Vulcanite Base for Artificial Teeth has been thoroughly tested and used in Eastern cities for the last four years, and proved, beyond a doubt, to be the best substitute ever used as a base for sets of teeth.

It possesses the following advantages over metalic plates: It is not more than half the weight of metal, is indestructible and perfectly cleanly .-The absolute certainty of fitting the mouth renders the old form of plate unnecessary, doing away with more than half the width, getting a better fit, and not at all impairing the taste, as is the case where the whole of the mouth is covered with a plate .-Its extreme lightness renders it particularly adapted to filling out sunken portions of the face. To those who are wearing sets that they cannot eat with, we would say that if they will give us a trial we will guarantee them teeth with which they can eat and wear with ease and comfort. Please call at our office on Fifth street, next door to the Cathedral, and examine specimens.

PERUVIAN SYRUP OR PROTECTED Solution of Protoxide of Iron, The Only Reliable and Permanent

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA GENERAL DEBILITY AND ALL DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPOVER-ISHED AND

IMPURE BLOOD.

THE failure of Iron as a rem dy for disorganized blood, ha arisen from the want of some preparation of it that will assimilate with that vital fluid. This need the PERUVIAN SYRUP supplies, and in the only form in which it is possible for Iron to enter the circulation. For the same resson, the class of disease PERUVIAN SYRUP radically cures are precisely those which the usual remedies merely relieve; among which are:

Dyspepsia, Dropsies, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Consumption Tendencies, Colorless, Blood Bolls, Skin Diseases, St. Vitus Blood Boils, Skin Diseases, St. Vitus

The Washington correspondent of the Herald says the Northwestern difficulty will doubtless be-come a matter of negotiation between the Gov-ernments of Great Britain and that of the United States, as the treaty setting the boundary has no provision for a settlement in such a case as has arisen. The State Department has had this matter under consideration, and General Harney will receive instructions to act with great caution until the Governments have compared views upon the subject.

This morning Judge Ingraham, of the Supreme Court, rendered a decision in the case of John A. Underwood et al., agent of the New York and New Haven Railroad Co, in which an application was made to enjoin the company from paying a dividend of $3 per share, recently declared, till it shall have been ascertained who are the genuine stockholders entitled to such dividends. The Judge holds that there is no good reason to restrain the disbussement of the dividend upon stock now held by persons who carried it rights to the stock of the st by persons who owned it prior to 1850 and have not transferred it since that time. The injunction is continued against the stockholders, and the directors are enjoined from declaring any future dividend till the adjudication of some court shall seperate the genuine issues from those of Schuy-

Charles Neibuhr, the sailor wounded in the at fray on the Mayflower a few days since, died last night at the hospital. The fall business is gradually assuming a wider volume of activity, though in some quarters we hear it remarked that the purchases are not to the extent which the abundant crops throughout the country would seem to encourage. In the dry goods market there is a good busisess doing. The far Southern demand has subsided considerably, but the near by South is beginning to be represented, which, together with the appearance of Western merchants, gives rise to a fair amount of sales. The only material change in prices is a domestic goods, which are more freely offered The Independent of to-day furnishes the following report: The demand, except with a few leading houses, has not yet come to the average of past years, but hopes are entertained that it will yet do so. The offerings of silks, both fancy and staple, are very large, and all but very desi-rable styles are easy to buy at some decline. But few British goods have been passed for sale, and French and German fabrics are in heavy surplus supply. The quantity of shawls imported this season is unusually large and can be bought cheap. The demand for the West is not so good as was even expected, and that was but small. Domestic goods are comparatively steady. small. Domestic goods are comparatively steady, but print goods have sold in large quantities at a concession in prices. Cotton staple goods steady, but the declining price of the raw material, with pout the declining price of the raw material, with prospects of a very abundant crop this year, is creating expectations of some decline in goods ordered for future delivery. At present stocks are not heavy. Domestic woolens are active; both delaines and fancy cassimores are firm. Silk mixtures have c-ased to be desirable goods at present, and therefore do not participate in the present, and therefore do not participate in the general buoyancy of the woolen domestic

A large and spirited audience was present at Haggerty & Co.'s sales room at the sale of Charles Payers & Co.'s French ribbons, which sold quite well and fully up to the range previously obtained. Wilmerdings, Hoguet & Humbert had a sale of Gourd, Frerers & Co's importation of siks, which, though establishing a lower range of pri-ces, sold on the whole quite satisfactorily. The bark J. W. Page, from Monrovia, Liberia, on the Sist of July, furnishes very interesting news, and reports late papers from the West Coast of Africa.

Small pox prevailed extensively in Monrovi and a large public health meeting had been held in order to devise measures to arrest its progress. The Quail, a new war steamer, presented by the Euglish Government to the Republic, had arrived from Plymouth, and the journals are loud in their protestations of gratitude to Queen Victoria and Lord Palmerston, contrasting their liberality with the policy of the United States towards their country very unfavorably to ourselves. President Benson immediately went on a visit to the Chiefs to the leeward in the Quail. Everything quiet at Cape Palmas.

JOHN BULL'S COMPOUND PECTORAL OF WILD CHERRY.

THE seal of public approbation has been so unmistakably fixed upon this medicine that the proprietor feels it to be his duty to call the attention of all those persons to it who are suffering from, or threatened with, affections of the lungs or throat. Its basis is the active principle of the Wild Cherry Bark, but it contains also, in proper proportions, other of the most efficient pectorals of the MATRIA MEDICA. Its component parts and proportions are well known to physicians everywhere, as the proprietor makes no secret of them, and they have met the universal approbation of the faculty, who, as a general thing, prefer using this preparation to any prescription which they can have prepared by a druggist.

"Give us a Song!" the soldlers cried,
The cuter trenches guarding,
Whea the hested guns of the camps allied Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoffs, Lay, grim and threatening, under; And the tawny mound of the Malakoff No longer belched its thunder. There was a pause. The guardsmen said "We storm the forts to-morrow:

Sing w' ile we msy, another day Will bring enough of sorrow." They lav along the battery's side,

Below the smoking cannon— rave hearts from Severn and from Clyde, And from the banks of Shannon.

They sang of love, and not of fame:
Forgot was Britain's glory;
Each heart recalled a different name,
But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song, Until its tender passion Ross like a anthem, rich and strong— Their battle-eve confession.

Dear girl, her name he dared n .t speak,

Yet as the song grew louder, Something upon the soldier's cheek Washed off the stails of powder.

Beyond the darkening ocean burned The bloody sunset's embers, While the Crimean valleys learned How English love remembers.

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim For a singer dumb and gory; And English Mary mourns for Who sang of "Annie Laulie.

Ah, soldiers! to your honored rest

The loving are the daring.

THE POVERTY CURE.

Mrs. Durand was an invalid. For many years she had been a victim to a complicated and baf-fling disease, which, for want of a better name, was christened by her physicians and friends, "nervous debility."

"nervous debility."
The slightest excitement or exertion left her utterly prostrated and weary, and every nerve and muscle in her system kept her painfully conscious of their existence. The luxuries that surrounded her were only to her a realization of the fable of the cup of Tantalus. True, she had an elegant car riage, fine horses, and many servants, but the fa tigue of riding out was far greater than the pleas-ure of a drive, and she rarely attempted it. She had a fine library, but books she had not cared much for; and if she had loved reading, her eyes were so weak as to putthat amusement out of the question. An extensive and choicely kept conservatory was part of Mr. Durand's establishment, but the odors of the flowers made his invalid wife faint and sick; she had no taste for fancy work—that busy idleness which saves so many women from ennul. Embroidery, crotchet, knitting and netting, she had tried in turn, and each tired her and made her head ache. Her three children generally paid her a visit once a day; but it would be difficult to decide which enjoyed it least, or wa more pleased to have it over-the boys or their The children were glad to escape from the hushed, gloomy chamber, where every thing that they did seemed to be out of place and wrong, so constantly were they checked for being boister-ous or troublesome; and Mrs. Durand experienced a sensation of relief when she kissed them all, and saw them safely marshaled out of the room by their nurse-for she had a comfortable cons ness that she had done her duty, and that she had seen the last of them for one day at least.

After this morning visit she had nothing to de but lean her aching head wearily back on the pil lowed easy-chair until her physician's coming aroused her from her listlessness for a few me This call, and a still briefer one fr husband, just before dinner, were all that varied the monotony of her life.

Mr. Durand was a kind man, and reasonably fond of his wife; he had spared no pains or expense to restore her to health; he had made no objection to be trial of the pathies—allopathy, homograthy, bydropathy—and had only shrugged his shoulders when as a last resort, healing mediums were called to the rescue. He had gratified her every whim: had taken her to every variety of climate; without a word of remonstrance had visited all the Springe far and near, in search of that health which was nowhere to be found, until at last, after going round the whole circ'e of remedies in vain, it had been Mrs. Durand's own proposal to remain at home

Meanwhile as his wife's malady though, incurable, seemed not at all likely to prove fatal, Mr. Durand's anxiety, which had at first been extreme, died away. It grew to be a matter of course that Ma-ria should be sick, and his daily call and these stereotyped dialogue became equally habitual: "Well, how do you feei to day, Maria?"

A pause—then a glance at his watch. "It is now dinner time. Good night, Maria. I wish you could sit at the table with me." This conversation, almost without a variation had been repeated day after day, until it was as much a part of Mr. Durand's life as his dinner and the cigar, the evening's paper, and the quiet rub

The lonely evenings Mrs. Durand spent as she did her lonely days, reclining in her chair or on a lounge—her thin, white hands, shaded by exquis-its and costly lace, folded and lying idle in her

ap, while with half-shut eyes she gave herself up It seemed almost like a dream to her to look back, as she often did, to the time when, a rosy, plump and joyous country maiden, she had raked hay, made butter and cheese, washed dishes, and even scrubbed the white floor of her aunt's neat kitchscrubbed the white floor of her aunt's neat kitchen. Her small white hands, now so white and soft, had been red and hard once; her transparent cheek had been sun-burned and brown, but her rustic beauty had won the heart of the rich merchant, whom business brought for a few weeks to the neighborhood of Mapleton, and not many months later she became his wife. City life was entirely new to Maria Durand, and for a few seasons the new to Maria Durand, and for a few seasons she had enjoyed it to the full. Parties, the opera, and all sorts of gayeties succeeded each other, until while life held out to her a cup overflowing with a delicious and intoxicating draught, one drop of bitterness had poisoned it all. It was hard, in-deed, and poor Maria Durand shed many scalding tears, as in the solitude of her own room, she contrasted the present with the past.

She had plenty of time for such reflections, for the calls of her many friends, and the inquiries for the health of "Mrs. Durand," had grown less and the health of "Mrs. Durand," had grown less and less frequent, until they had almost entirely ceased, and she who had been at one time a reigning belle—admired, flattered and envied—was now

The circle in which Mrs. Durand had moved was not unusually heartless; but sickness is a test which never fails to distinguish the counterfeit-from the generous friendship, and it must be confessed that few human beings have a fountain of sympathy which will sustain a drain of four or five years in one direction, without at times run-five years in one direction, without at times running dry.

As if conscious of this, invalids are very apt to make up for the deficiencies of others by bestowing all their own sympathies on themselves; absorbed in their own sufferings, they forget all others. Mrs. Durand was no exception to this general rule, or she would have observed that her husband was growing pale, thin, wrinkled and care-worn. He was strangely absent-minded—he came up to her room after dinner several times, and sat there silent and moody; if she addressed him, he replied at random, and she made no attempt at conversation.

She was lying on her couch one evening, when Mr. Durand entered the room. She did not look up, she hardly spexe—for she had felt unusually ill all day, and her head was still throbbing painfully. Her busband approached and stood by her side. "Maria," said he, "I should like to talk with you a little, if you are able to hear it."

Something is his voice startled her; she looked p, and for the first time saw how baggard and changed he had grown.

"What is it?" she cried, starting up. "How fear-fully pale you look. The children?"
"Are perfectly well," he replied. "Has anything happened to you, Robert?"

"Maria," he said, hardly heeding her words, "I merined—bankrupt."

He buried his face in his hands, and his whole frame shook with emotion. In an instant his wife's arms were around his neck, her kisses on his "I won't lis almost unmans me. "Is all lost?" she asked.

"I fear so. My honor, thank God, will remain nastained; but nothing will be left after the pay-nent of my debts."

"And how did it happen?"
Her husband briefly told her of his misfortunes, which were mainly owing to losses at sea—for he was largely engaged in navigation, he rehearsed his struggles; told of his sleepless nights and anxious days, and Maria listened with moistened eyes and narted line.

and parted lips.
"My own dear husband," she said, at last, kissing bum fondly, "and what are your plans for the future?"

even then it would be hard to exchange this house for one suited to our income, or rather lack of in-come, and instead of having servants to do our bidding, to wait not only on yourself but on others. "It is very pleasant to be waited on, I admit," said Mrs. Durand, "but I can do without it; and I have not forgotten how to sweep and make up beds and bake. Try me, and you shall see that I am as good a cook as your Freuch artiste. We will be happy yet, Robert. Riches are comfortable, but poverty shall not make us miserable."

Chescal in saite of himself by his wife's spirit red in spite of himself by his wife's spirit, Mr. Durand began to talk of the future and the evening, which began so gloomy, ended quite Robert Durand felt already like a new man; his wife's sympathy lightened the load which had well nigh crushed him, and he set about the settlement of his business with fresh courage.

From the wreck of his fallen fortune, he came out with a large stock of self-respect—for no man could charge him with dishororable conduct—and a very small stock of capital with which to begin he world anew.

Mrs. Durand, meantime, was not idle. It was her part to see to the settlement of the domestic affairs, and though head and limb ached, yet she never complained. But to her surprise, her sleep less nights vanished—what opiates had failed to do, the magic of fatigue accomplished; and when at last the family were settled in a small but comfortable house, though she was very tired she yet felt that she was really better than she had been for a long time. As months passed, her appetite, which had been capricious and variable, became natural and heal-ty; dyspepsia slowly yielded its hold upon her, thin features became rounded her. plumpness, and at last a faint color tinged her cheeks. In one short year, the invalid Mrs. Du-rand, was transformed into a fresh looking ma-

With her health her spirit returned, and the children astonished her one day by telling her that "they loved her a great deal better than they used to, because she was so nice," which, adjective, when she pressed for its interpretation, was further explained to mean "that she didn't tell them to keep still all the time, and that she baked them nice cakes and she told them stories, and she looked nice cakes and she told them stories, and she looked a great deal prettier."

This latter compliment, Mr. Durand, who had been a listener to the conversation, emphatically pronounced true enough. "And she is as good as she is pretty, little folks," he added, passing his arm around her waist.

Mrs. Durand looked up with a smile.

"We are not so very miserable after all," she said slyly. Her husband's only reply was a closer Years had passed, and Mr. Durand again was a rich man; once more his wife was mistress of a fine establishment—once more she attended and gave parties. But now she sat among the older ple, and looked on to to see her girls and boys oy, with all the zest of youth, the music and "I was telling Mrs. Tyler," continued Mrs. Lor-imer, "that she reminded me of you when you

"We've Got a Baby." The following letter, which bears internal evidence of being a bona fide epistle, was picked up in the streets of Utica a few days ago:

Brother and Sister Stebbins: We have got a live baby at our house, a little girl baby—that's so.—How I wish this might find you in the same situation. You know I always wished you well. But our baby is none of your common babies. She aughs (and cries) so pretty, you can have no idea low handsome she is. It is decided by the best of judges (her mother and me) that she is the handst child that ever lived; and everybody says, what a pretty child, how much she looks like her children will resemble their parents, you w. I wouldn't take twenty dollars for her; no no temptation. Perhaps you think I'm a fool. Who cares—guess you'd be a fool if you had such a baby. I wish your domestic affairs would come to a crisis, (cry sis.) You must excuse all mistakes, for I'm so delighted and transported that I expect there is a right smart chance that I may

Why you can't think how I acted the day the little stranger came along. Mrs. Boardman and I were the attending physicians, and what she didn't know I didn't either, a little considerable scared, looked for my hat two, three, several times and wondered how far it was to Texas.— But after the excitement was over, wasn't I tickled some. If it handn't been for that white hat of mine I couldn't have told which end my head was on. I went up stairs a dozen times or less after my hat—went and looked at the baby and forgot it every time. Sold a man some goods on tick, and charged him, "to 1 baby sixpence per pound."— But I'm calmer new; think I shall entirely recover. Begin to think that baby aint such a cun ning affair after all. It is quite a night institution It takes one-half of the bed, and right in the mid ile, and I have to sleep all round on the edges .-Can't roll over and kick as I used to, might wake up the baby. And if I just happen to roll on the little thing in the night, then there's a fuss, for my wife would make a great ado if I should kill that baby. She sleeps with one eye open.

I'll tell you about how I get along nights.—
The other night I went to bed as usual, got into a snoze, when my wife called "John! John, there's a mouse in my band-box, and it will ruin my bonnet." Well, I rolls of the bed rail and make a wake for the band-box. Mouse takes the hint and leaves, and I balance myself on the bed rail again, "bless ne, this is pleasant riding on a rail." But soon I am awakened by my wife (watchful crea-ture) calling "John! I guess that mouse is in the lower bureau drawer, where all the baby's things are." So up I get once more and make a plunge for the bureau, and mouse leaves as usual, while I, like the old Quaker, wish for some profane per-son to d-n that mouse. Well, I get on the rail once more and dream of sending an order to Chicago for mouse-traps. Well, I dream away awhile tili I am once more awakened by the old familian call, "John! John, the baby wants tending to."- no matter, you know what I mean.

The next morning I have to be careful in using the towels, for "all is not gold that glitters." But I must keep still and stand it all for the dear little baby, mother's little precious lamb.

THE RIVER was about at a stand yesterday with two feet nine inches water in the canal, in the evening, by the mark. During the previous twenty-four hours the river had not varied half an inch at the head of the falls. The weather has been cloudy and clear at times, and quite warm with indications of rain.

The river at Pittsburg has nearly gone dry, and unless we soon hear of heavy rains in that quarter, navigation above Cincinnati will be virtually Hence to Cincinnati there are scant four feet

Along the lower Ohio the water is again getting quite low, and the John Tompkins, which arrived Thursday might, reported less than four feet water at Oil Creek, and the Conewago hard aground on the bar. Boats drawing four feet water would have much trouble in getting over the bar, and would be compelled to lighten.

At the rate the river has since been falling, we think that boats now drawing over three feet would find it very difficult to get over Flint island or Oil Creek, unless the channel should cut out. According to the marks at the foot of the

As to the upper river boats, never before has so large is crop been raised as this year; therefore they will of course have large down freights all the season, as this produce, or the most of it, must pass out the great ratural channel, the Mississippi. must pass out the great catural channel, the Mississippi. There was a large number of departures on Saturday, but, we are sorry to say, with light tips. We hope from this day through the season with be, as of yore, all life, bustle and activity. The wharf of the First District is in good repair, never better at this season, much improved and extended, and the lesses deserve great credit for having it so. The Second Dist let wharf is still under improvement, and may be expected to be findshed some time during the month.

The Portsmouth left St. Louis Thursday for the Ohio. BACKED OUT .- The St. Louis papers publish card from the owners of the Imperial, in which they state that the boat will not be withdrawn from the St. Louis trade. She is about the only first rate boat in the "Mob Line," and she has to be retained as a sort of card for the others.

The John Bell, having been detained, takes her departure to Cairo and Memphis to day. The clerk, Dr. Yocum, will be found courteous and attentive. The Charm, under the auspices of Green tucky river, from Carrollton to Cedar Lock.— Freights shipped on the Carrollton packets, Freestone and Evansville, to-day, will be forwarded by the Charm to all ponits along Kentucky river as far as Cedar Lock. The Evansville, Capt. Neal, with Frank Strader in the office, starts to Carrollton at one o'clock this evening.

The Freestone, Capt. Crider, goes to Mad-

The work on the Beargrass sewer is slowly ong ahead, the masons and ditchers having carried their work under the Third street bridge, extending it a few yards towards Second street.— The arched brick work on top of the sewer has peen commenced, and appears to be vigorously prosecuted, but the vault of said sewer is yet neg-ected, and nothing whatever done towards re-

The wharf, as soon as wet weather sets in; wil be impassable, and the city should lend prompt aid to Capt. Diller, the wharf master, in having a portion of it, at least, paved.

To Frank Strader, clerk of the Evansville from Carrollton, we are indebted for a manifest. She had a good deal of freight, including twenty hads of tobacco from Kentucky river, reshipped from the Charm.

The Atlantic, Capt. McGill's great boat, will not be launched before Saturday next. Sam. King, the hull builder, has nearly all his work leted, and McClaran & Co., the cabin build. ers, have a large force at work framing the cabin, which will be the prettiest, most convenient and complete on the Western waters. The friends of Capt. McGill have chartered the Pink Varble No. 2 to attend the launch next Saturday. Every body is invited. The Mississippi river is getting very low, and navigation is much restricted, and the upper rivers, especially the Missouri, are all falling

Navigation along the Misseuri is said to be far more hazardous and difficult than ever was known. In regard to the loss of the St. Mary in that river, mention of which was made yesterday, we add the following from the St. Joseph Gazette

f Wednesday: By the Wm. Campbell, from Omaha, we learn that the t. Mary, Capt. Blythe Weaver, one of the Railroad sackets plying between this city and Council Bluffs, which left here on Saturday night, ran upon a snag on unday morning, ato .t 5 o'clock, near Hemme's Landoroken in two. The boat is of course a total loss.

The St Mary was freighted chirily for Nebraska City and Omaha. Her cargo was nearly all taken off by the ferry-boat St. Stephen; and, with the exception of some bardware in the hold and other heavy goods, the loss will be small.

SINKING OF THE ADRIATIC.—The large stern-wheel steamer Adriatic, which passed down on Monday evening, sunk almost in view of the city, a short time after she left port. The accident occurred about 9 o'clock at night, at the foot of President's island, at a locality known as Dismal Point. While under full headway the bow was run upon a bluff bank, and the boat being heavily ladenshe filled rapidly, and her stern went down in very deep water while the bow rested upon the ground. When we last heard from the wreck it was filling fast and settling down in almost unfathomable water. No lives were lost by the accident, and a large number of horses and mules, embracing all the stock she had on board, were saved. As remarked above, the Adriatic was heavily freighted, and her cargo consisted of tobacco, flour and grain, very little of which it was thought would be saved. The boat was valued at $15,000 and the cargo at $50,000. As little is known of her here, we are not informed as to the amount of insurance on the vessel or her freight. SINKING OF THE ADRIATIC.—The large stern amount of insurance on the vessel or her freight. She was built in the Ohio river, by Capt. Charles Stone, and was commanded at the time of the accident by Capt. Jas. Stackpole, in every respect a careful and efficient officer. The Adriatic was decidedly the largest boat of the stern-wheel fleet.—

New York Stock Market. Nsw Yoax, Sept. 9.—The stock list shows a ower range of prices, the decline equalling in most instances iall per cent., closing, however, most instances 1a1½ per cent, closing, however, rather better than the opening prices; the heaviness is less marked on the State stocks and the better class of railroad bonds, some of which are still sparingly offered. The closing price of N. Y. Central is 78%, Galena 73½, Rock Island 63½ a69½, Michigan guaranteed 24½ a24½. Michigan Central 46% a46¾; Panama was 118, and Pacific Mail 84884½, which is about the same as yesterday's prices. Bank shares are without material change from yesterday. The stock market, after an uninterrupted advance in prices for a period of thirty days, shows signs of weaknesss, and the reaction to-day is regarded by some as the commencement of a regarded by some as the commencement of a further important fall. Whether such is to follow or not, certain it is that the recent high prices resulted more from combinations and sharp corners than (if we except N. Y. Central) from that degree of increase in business which must be had and seems to give value to stocks, and stability and permanence to high prices. The money mar-ket shows no change whatever; call loans are still quoted at 6 per cent. as a rule, and prime four and six months paper 7. There is little doing in either exchange bills or bullion for the steamer to morrow. The rates on London and Paris are steady

THE FARM: THE ORCHARD: THE STOCK RANGE SEPT. 10, 1859.

SHORT-HORN CATTLE IN EUROPE. Sanford Howard, now in England, writes to the Boston Cultivator from the home of the Shorthorns: I spent a day or two in the northern part of Yorkshire and the adjoining county of Durham, along the famed valley of the Tees—the classic ground of the Short horn cattle. The soil is mostbut excellent for grass. I was surprised to find here some of the poorest farming 10 much to clay. But excellent for grass. I was surprised to find here some of the poorest farming I have seen in Britain. The foulness of the crops, the clumsiness and antiquated character of the implements, and the general slovenliness of the steadings and fields, would disgrace even a Mohawk Dutchman. I am not to be understood that this is the character of not to be understood that this is the character of all the farming in this district but it is certainly too much so of a considerable portion.

I have alluded to this section as having been the early home of the English Short-horn cattle. So far as can be ascertained from the history and tradition, they were first introduced from the Connent, and were known as the "Short-horn, or Dutch breed." In process of time the breed, by crossing and otherwise, underwent various change es, and from the improvement attained by the cat-tle of this valley, they became known as the Tees-water breed. Subsequently, from the notoriety of the stock of some leading breeders on the Duram side (the Collings and others,) it took the ame of Durham breed, and afterwards that of mproved Short-horn breed. It is remarkable, owever, that notwithstanding this territory was early occupied by the Short-horns, they are by no means the exclusive possessors of it at this time. Many Irish cattle are seen in the fields—a stock mostly of Long-horn extraction, with an infusion, in various degrees, of Short-horn blood.
The improved variety of Short-horns are not so generally kept in this district as one might suppose. They are mostly in the hands of profes-tional breeders, or those who sell breeding stock. Several noted men of this class have resided here. The residence of the late Thomas Bates, who was well known in America, was at Kirkleavington, near 1 arm, Durham. I was there a few days since, but found little of interest about the place, except in its associations. Since Mr. Bates' death no attention is here paid to the breeding of cattle

-most of those seen on the farm occupied by him and in the neighborhood, being of quite indifferent

I had also the pleasure, lately, of visiting War laby, the residence of Richard Booth, Esq., whose fame as a breeder of Short-horns is at this time greater, perhaps, than that of any other man. have previously spoken of the points in which Mr. Booth's herds excel—viz., the fineness of the crop and chine, the smoothness of the shoulder points and the fullness of the first ribs. To these I might add, general evenness, of carcass, and greater thick ness of flesk on the most valuable parts, than have ever seen in any other Short horns. Mr. B. has obtained these points (in which ort-horns generally are greatly wanting) with out any sacrifice of other properties possessed by the breed at large. His stock have every ap-pearance of good constitution, and some of the ost noted prize-takers have been unusually pr

The common kind of Short-horns are not very good cattle; they are apt to be coarse-boned and coarse-fleshed, and are large consumers in propor ion to the returns they vield. It is remarkable how frequently stock of this description is met with, even in the immediate neighborhood of noted herds. On a farm near Mr. Booth's, I noticed a large stock, mostly as rough and uncultivated a though their owners had never seen or heard o the far-famed Warlaby bulls. TO MAKE BUTTER IN FIVE MINUTES WITHOUT llowing recipe: After straining the milk set it away for about twelve hours for the cream to rise. (Milk dish-es ought to have strong handles to lift them by.) After standing as above, set the milk, without disturbing it, on the stove; let it stand there until you observe the coating of cream on the surface assume a wrinkled appearance, but be careful it does not boil, as should this be the case, th eam will mix with the milk and cannot be again collected. Now set it away till quite cool, and then skim off the cream, mixed with as little milk as possible. When sufficient cream is collected, proceed to make it into butter as follows: Take a wooden bowl, or any suitable vessel, and having mistaken for a Buenos Ayrean steamer, actuougu Col. Santa Cruz, who gave the orders to fire, should have known her. Gen. Urquisa arrived at Parana on the 26th of June, with 1,200 troops, but he was in bad health. Rosario city was being put in a state of defense.

Trade was exceedingly dull in Busnos Ayres, and rates of produce entirely speculative.

The Government contract with Messrs. Hopkins & O'Camps, for making a railroad to San Fernando, was very favorable to the contractors. A good many city improvements were being carried out the cream over another containing water to warn separate all the milk you possibly can, as the lat-ter will be found excellent for tea cakes. Butter made in this manner will be much firmer and less

Unless you evaporate 75 per cent of water from the tomato, you will obtain from it nothing but half nauseous porridges, never that delicious tempting pulp, whose highly developed fragrance renders it so pleasing to the nostril, nice to the taste, sharp to the teeth, and healthy to the Take half a peck of ripe, washed tomatoes, cut them open by halves, scratch out the seeds, pre-serve the skir; have a skillet or any earthenware dish, place it over a brisk fire, with an ounce of Bosron, Sept. S.—Major General Wool arrived in camp Massachusetts last evening, where he was received by the Commander-in-chief, and partook of supper at the head quarters. A large number of distinguished guests were present, including many ladies.

Ring no bell, blow no horn, the boys will be at hand beforetime, snuffing hard, wetting their lips. At this stage of proceedings, the prudent housewife will break in some eggs, half an hour before dinner, and then there will be a general craving for more.

During that time I have had a great many swarms dstroyed by millers, or bee-moths, and was, therefore, well pleased to see in the Even-plan proposed a trial, and, accordingly, when the season arrived, I put out (as directed) a white plate containing a mixture of molasses and vineplate containing a mixture of molasses and vine-gar well stirred up together. This I continued through all the warm nights of the latter part of July and fore part of August, setting the plate at night on a level with the bottom part of a hive and near to it, and removing it in the morning. My success was complete. I counted each morning the number of millers caught during the night in the liquid on the plate, and in three or four weeks I trapped and killed one thousand. They do not fly much, except in very warm nights, and seem to discontinue their operations about the middle of August. I mention these facts for the benefit of those who keep bees, and I have strong hopes, that by adopting and making a thorough

Tea Culture in the United States.—The efforts making by the Patent Office to promote experiments in the culture of the tea-plant are awakening a renewed interest, which, since the labors of Dr. Smith, of South Carolina, were terminated by his untimely death, had been until recently neglected. Concerning Dr. Smith's experiments, the Charlesto 1 Courier recently said: "We regarded that experiment as proving conclusively the adaptation of the tea plant to the cimate of the Greenville district. It was the opinion of Dr. Smith, after acare ul examination, that portions of the mout times and Tennessee were better adapted to tea than a great proportion of the land cultivated in China. This opinion was derived not only from examination of the soil, and personal inquiry as to climate tion of the soil, and personal inquiry as to climata and condition of weather, but from a study of me-teorological records and observations. The same opinion as to our soil and climate was confident-ly expressed by Mr. Francis Bonynge, whose visit some eight years since will be remembered." To MEASURE HAY .- "More than two years since,"
